

Sapra's Peace Proposal to China

August 18, 2020

Sapra recently released his latest track titled "Haiwan" on August 1, 2020. The song is an artistic display and presentation of a wide variety of demographics including the youth, the elderly, children and people of the world who cry out loud for empathy and understanding during a time when many are battling the devastating consequences and impact of COVID-19. In light of recent global events relating to the handling of COVID-19, government suppression in China and conflict at the Chinese-India border, Sapra writes a peace proposal to the Chinese Communist Party as a way to extend an open line of dialogue in hopes of working toward a path toward peace.

Dear Chinese Communist Party,

I wanted to acknowledge that I am a great admirer of your country and culture. Historically speaking, your country has brought to the world many delicious foods, countless intellectual contributions, and amazing technological advancements of all kinds to the world. Your country, culture, landscape and people are utterly beautiful and extraordinary.

I am a citizen of India and a current resident of the United States. I am an artist, filmmaker and a world that we move forward together. In a post-COVID-19 world, this the only way. I believe the way through requires understanding, compassion, and peace.

It is my humble request that you consider my several proposals in an effort to work toward achieving peace:

I request a further diplomatic exchange between China, United States and India. I think a sincere dialogue between these two countries will help us solve any conflicts and demolish any need of war as war is and our behaviors impact one another in tremendous ways.

I ask that your country encourage the way for freedom of speech. As your country has entered into the globalized era and openly accepted changes in technological advancement, so too should ideas flow freely, and people shall be permitted to speak freely without fear of retribution or punishment by the Chinese government. We also must work to address efforts to achieve justice for the loss of Dr. Ai Fen's life. Her efforts to educate the world on the coronavirus have been put to an end and justice in her name must be sought. We need to speak transparently on what has happened to her and why her message was not let out into the world.

It is my request that your country participate in nuclear disarmament and relinquish the future need and use of such materials. Ultimately, warfare is an extension of anger, ego, greed and we must control this "Haiwan" desire and let go of the need to amass unnecessary instruments and tools for destruction.

I ask that your country stand united with the United States and India and sign a peace deal as it relates to the current situation at the India-China border.

As one of the primary member countries of the United Nations Security Council, it is integral for us to acknowledge that your country is a pivotal nation in achieving peace on a global scale. We need you to sign a peace treaty as a way to unify our nations on a global scale.

Ultimately, I'm not a politician, but I am a genuinely concerned citizen and artist. I strive that there to be peace and equanimity between both India and China. We must consider that we live in a delicate ecosystem where our actions truly do impact one another deeply. We must strive to achieve peace as "One cannot build happiness on other people's suffering."

Thank you for taking the time to hear my humble plea.

Sincerely,

peace enthusiast who is writing to you on behalf of concerned citizens of the world. I write this so humbly as someone who hails from a neighboring country. Currently, we are living in a climate where there is great tension between our nations. Ultimately, it has become clear to me that our collective future requires ultimately a useless path. We need to establish a dialogue. The need for war is unnecessary. Ultimately, we are brothers and sisters in this world and our fates are tied together. We must work as one united and cohesive entity. Our livelihoods are interdependent on one another. We are inextricably linked on this planet
